

Paul Field (UK Met Office)

Implementing double moment cloud microphysics into the Met Office regional model configuration

Abstract:

CASIM (Cloud AeroSol Interacting Microphysics) is the new double moment cloud microphysics scheme that will be introduced into the Met Office operational regional model next year. Results will be shown for performance in the Tropics and the UK. Improvements will be highlighted as well as a discussion about what challenges remain.